October Meeting National Business Women's Week

On October 15, 2013, Rockwood BPW will meet at Victorian Square for dinner and to hear Sabrina Hooper, Deputy Director of the Tennessee Human Rights Commission, speak on issues important to working women. Pay Equity has been an important issue for BPW on all levels, local, state, and national, for some time with members encouraged to contact legislators to express our concerns about the legislation on both the state and national levels.

Members will be called before Monday, October 7, to make a reservation for members and their guests. We hope to have a number of guests attending both from other organizations in Rockwood and from other BPWs.

We also hope to present the annual Employer of the Year award.

Please make every effort to come to this celebration of NBWW to be informed about an issue that affects current women employees and those in the future.

Proclamations declaring October 21-25 National Business Women's Week have been signed by James Watts, Mayor of Rockwood, and Ron Woody, Roane County Mayor.

Message from the President

During National Business Women's Week, we should remember the strong women who preceded us in the struggle for equal rights. Susan B. Anthony was probably one of the strongest influences of all time. In 1839, at age 17, she collected petitions opposing slavery. She worked closely with Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Horace Greeley. In 1868, she published the first women's rights journal, The Revolution in New York. Its motto was: "The true republic—men, their rights and nothing more; women, their rights and nothing less." The main thrust of The Revolution was to promote women's and African-Americans' right to suffrage, but it also discussed issues of equal pay for equal work, more liberal divorce laws and the church's position on women's issues. On November 18, 1872, Anthony was arrested by a U.S. Deputy Marshal for voting on November 5 in the 1872 presidential election two weeks earlier. She confided in Elizabeth Cady Stanton that she had voted a straight Republican ticket. She was arrested, tried, and convicted, fined $100.00, but not imprisoned. Her arguments were based on the recently adopted Fourteenth Amendment: "All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside. No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws." She continued to spread her arguments and giving speeches for equal rights, quoting the Declaration of Independence, The United States Constitution, the New York Constitution, James Madison, Thomas Paine, the Supreme Court, and several of the leading Radical Republican senators of the day to support her case that women as citizens have a right to vote. In 1869, Anthony and Elizabeth Cady Stanton founded the National Woman's Suffrage Association. She died at the age of 86 of heart disease and pneumonia. Fourteen years after Anthony's death, women's right to vote was affirmed on August 26, 1920, by passage of the Nineteenth Amendment to the U. S. Constitution which Anthony and Stanton wrote.
